HONORS DAY

It is peculiarly fitting that our State Olympics are now opened by this hour of devotion to achievements of the intellect. We hereby declare our allegiance once more to that ancient ideal of mental alertness supported by physical stamina.

It was the hope of those who originated the Honors Day plan that the reflections of the present moment might bring an intimate sense of satisfaction to those who have chosen the life of a scholar. May we hope also that the distinction offered by this day will have a beneficent influence upon the whole academic life of the University Community and even upon those communities which will give us the students of tomorrow.

The students whose names appear on this program have merited the recognition offered on this day by fulfilling the requirements for scholarship suggested in the following notes from the minutes of the University Senate.

On Honors Day announcement is to be made of the names of undergraduate students who have distinguished themselves in scholarship during the two semesters previous to Honors Day; with the exception that in the case of freshmen the award is to be based on the grades for the first semester only.

There are three forms of such honors:

(a) Students in the upper ten per cent of each class are entitled to have their names printed in the convocation program. These students are distinguished on the following pages by the words "High Scholarship."

(b) Students in the upper three per cent of the sophomore, junior, and senior classes are entitled to wear an emblem, a replica of which is printed upon the cover of this program. These students are distinguished on the following pages by the words "Superior Scholarship."

(c) Those seniors who have stood in the upper three per cent of their class in both their junior and senior years have earned the right to have their names inscribed on the bronze tablet which is to be unveiled during the present convocation.

“Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding.
For the gaining of it is better than the gaining of silver,
and the profit thereof than fine gold.
She is more precious than rubies;
And none of the things thou canst desire are to be compared unto her.
Length of days is in her right hand;
In her left hand are riches and honor.
Her ways are ways of pleasantness,
And all her paths are peace.”

The office of the scholar is to cheer, to raise, and to guide men by showing them facts amidst appearances. . . . In the long period of his preparation he must betray often an ignorance and shiftlessness in popular arts, incurring the disdain of the able who shoulder him aside. Long he must stammer in his speech; often forego the living for the dead. Worse yet, he must accept—how often!—poverty and solitude. For the ease and pleasure of treading the old road, accepting the fashions, the education, the religion of society, he takes the cross of making his own, and of course, the self-accusation, the faint heart, the frequent uncertainty and loss of time, which are the nettles and tangling vines in the way of the self-relying and self-directed; and the state of virtual hostility in which he seems to stand to society, and especially to educated society. For all this loss and scorn, what offset? He is to find consolation in exercising the highest functions of human nature. He is one who raises himself from private considerations and breathes and lives on public and illustrious thoughts. He is the world's eye. He is the world's heart. He is to resist the vulgar prosperity that retrogrades ever to barbarism, by preserving and communicating heroic sentiments, noble biographies, melodious verse, and the conclusions of history. Whatsoever oracles the human heart, in all emergencies, in all solemn hours, has uttered as its commentary on the world of actions,—these he shall receive and impart. And whatsoever new verdict Reason from her inviolable seat pronounces on the passing men and events of today,—this he shall hear and promulgate.

—RALPH WALDO EMERSON

SOCIAL ORGANIZATIONS

Social Organizations, whether national or local, and all organized houses which, for the two semesters preceding the Honors Day Convocation, have maintained an average of twenty-hundredths of a per cent above the general average of all University men or women, as the case may be, are entitled to the privilege of being named in the Honors Day Program. The following social organizations have met these requirements:

Men have entered into a desire of learning and knowledge, sometimes upon a natural curiosity and inquisitive appetite; sometimes to entertain their minds with variety and delight; sometimes for ornament and reputation; and sometimes to enable them to victory of wit and contradiction; and most times for lucre and profession; and seldom sincerely to give a true account of their gift of reason, to the benefit and use of men: as if there were sought in knowledge a couch whereupon to rest a searching and restless spirit; or a terrace for a wandering and variable mind to walk up and down with fair prospect; or a tower of state for a proud mind to raise itself upon; or a fort or commanding ground for strife and contention; or a shop for profit or sale; and not a rich storehouse for the glory of the Creator and the relief of man's estate.

—FRANCIS BACON

HONORARY AND PROFESSIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Honorary and professional organizations meet the requirements of Honors Day by selecting at least two-thirds of their initiates from among those students named in the preceding lists. The following organizations have met this requirement and now merit the honor of having their elections for the present year printed in the Honors Day Program.

v. 6

THE JOY OF ACHIEVEMENT is a high reward for an honest endeavor. Not always do we feel that our achievements are worthy of us or worthy of special recognition. There is however a peculiar sense of reward that comes when we know that the thing has been done according to our desire. I recall a seven year old boy who for days and days spent every leisure half hour at a certain self selected task. At times it seemed impossible, but at last the solution came. He broke down with tears and cried as only a boy can cry. The tears were the triumphant note of the joy in his heart.

What a fine thing it is to have this joy of achievement and also to know that others share our joy and happiness. This is one of the rewards we can share but never lose. Parents, teachers, comrades and friends, all are alive to the occasion.

Every man or woman whose name appears in this Honors Day program is entitled to a premium on the confidence these people have given hitherto. There is ample justification for a sense of security in the educational processes. This day demonstrates that for a long list, the college curriculum need not be a nightmare, but may be a source of continued and increasing joy.

Congratulations are appropriate. I join with all the faculty, classmates, parents and friends in extending a welcome to the distinction that is yours today.

Is it too much for me to express the hope that this day may be a prophecy of other achievements awaiting you in which the University and all your friends may see the justification of your education? I think not. Those who will, may doubt. You are the answer to all these interrogation points. Move on. Move on.

Very sincerely,

WILLIAM OXLEY THOMPSON

HONORS DAY

Honors Day was founded and is annually observed as an occasion upon which the University of Illinois gives official public recognition to such students as attain a high degree of excellence in scholarship.

The students whose names appear on this program have won recognition on this occasion by fulfilling the requirements suggested in the following notes from the minutes of the University Senate:

"On Honors Day announcement is to be made of the names of undergraduate students who have distinguished themselves in scholarship during the two semesters previous to Honors Day; with the exception that in the case of freshmen the award is to be based on the grades for the first semester only."

There are three grades of such honors:

(a) Students in the upper ten per cent of each class are entitled to have their names printed on the convocation program. These students are distinguished on the following pages by the words "High Scholarship."

(b) Students in the upper three per cent of the sophomore, junior, and senior classes receive special mention as having manifested "Superior Scholarship."

(c) Senior students who qualify as follows earn the right to have their names inscribed on the bronze tablet which is to be unveiled during the present convocation:

1. Those students who receive recognition for "Superior Scholarship" in both their junior and their senior years.
2. Other senior students whose scholastic average for the first seven semesters of their college course is equal to or higher than that of any student chosen as above.

THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS SCHOLARSHIP KEY

The right to wear the University of Illinois Scholarship key is granted as follows:

(1) To those students whose names have appeared in the Honors Day program three times, or in the superior scholarship group two times.

(2) To those seniors who qualify for bronze tablet honors.*

(3) To those transfer students who have not been in attendance here enough semesters to qualify as required above, but who have been named in the Honors Day program in the superior scholarship group as seniors.

*Seniors who qualify for bronze tablet honors are entitled to wear a special design of key with a gold star implanted upon the "I".

"The student who through heedlessness or indifference does poor work while in college suffers irreparable harm to his mental equipment, powers, and fitness to an extent that he will almost assuredly be compelled to work under severe handicaps after leaving college."

Judge FRED L. WHAM, '09.

SOCIAL ORGANIZATIONS

Social Organizations, whether national or local, and all organized houses which, for the two semesters preceding the Honors Day Convocation, have an average of twenty-hundredths of a per cent above the general average of all university students for that period, are entitled to the privilege of being named in the Honors Day program. The following social organizations have met these requirements:

"I firmly believe that the young person who forms the habit of getting each lesson well, and maintains a high scholastic average while in college is obtaining the best possible preparation for a successful business or professional career. The student must train himself to do his best all the time, as that is essential if he is to get ahead in this day of keen competition and specialization."

BERNARD F. OAKES, '24.

HONORARY AND PROFESSIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Honorary and professional organizations meet the requirements of Honors Day provided that two-thirds of their undergraduate initiates for the year win a place in the preceding lists. The following organizations have met this requirement this year and now merit the distinction of having their undergraduate elections for the present year printed in the Honors Day program.
